Homeless shelter part of parish's 'washing of the feet'

Experience just as meaningful to homeless men who participated

Lisa Holewa

Special to your Catholic Herald

MILWAUKEE — Kneeling before a barefoot homeless man, Tom Bohmann paused to ask one question: were any parts of the man's ragged and torn feet too sensitive or sore to be touched?

Bohmann then set to work, placing Earl Norris's feet on a green towel laid between them and applying foot cream, powder and a brand new pair of white athletic socks.

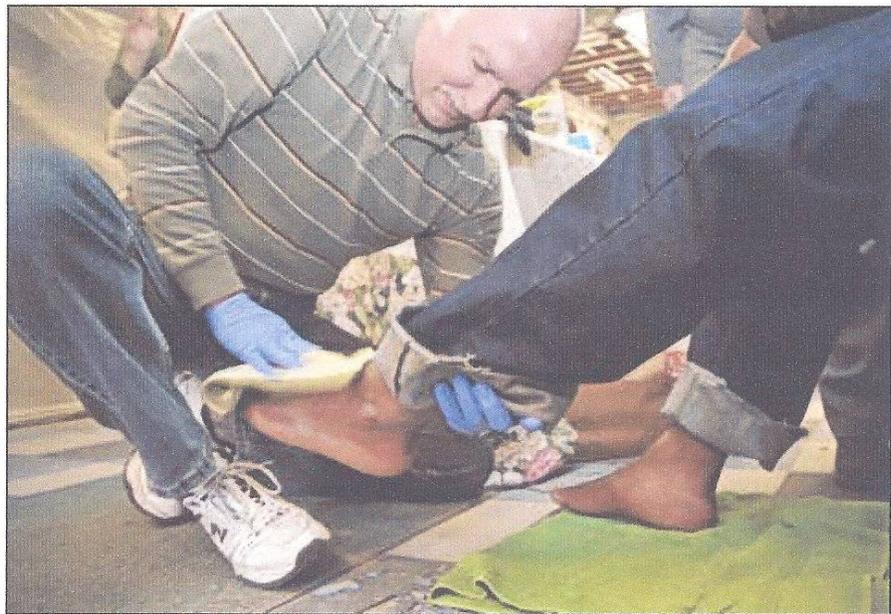

"I feel like a new man," Norris, 64, pronounced afterward.

He and another homeless man, 30-year-old Eleazar Wortham, had their feet cared for by Bohmann as part of a Holy Week ceremony at the Repairers of the Breach homeless outreach program, where Bohmann had just delivered a carload of foot care and other hygiene supplies. The foot care was symbolic of the "washing of the feet" that takes place during Holy Thursday services.

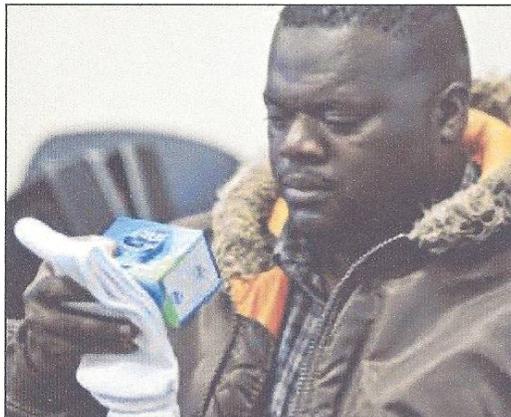

"I never thought I would be here," Wortham admitted before the ceremony March 31, while sitting in one of the torn chairs lined up along a wall in the cramped space where volunteers help the homeless find services.

"I'm hoping to be able to fulfill a lot of projects; I have a lot of thoughts about what I should be doing," he said, adding he has been without a home for two years now.

Bohmann's work was part of the "Matthew 25" service project at St. James Parish, Menomonee Falls, based on the passage in the New Testament where Jesus tells his followers: "... The righteous will answer him, 'Lord, when did we see you hungry and feed you, or thirsty and give you something to drink? When did we see you a stranger and invite you in, or needing clothes and clothe you? When did we see you sick or in prison and go to visit you?' The King will reply, 'I tell you the truth, whatever you did for one of the least of these brothers of mine, you did for me.'"

The project, now in its second year and growing rapidly, involves choosing two charities for each of the elements mentioned in Matthew 25 - one within the parish and one in the larger community - and donating goods or services accordingly.

To symbolize Jesus' message about being hungry or thirsty, the parishioners donated food to the Sussex Food Pantry, delivered food with home visits to shut-in parishioners, disabled and elderly, contributed food to the St. Martin de Porres food pantry and served Sunday dinner at a homeless shelter.

In addition, parishioners also donated clothing and volunteered at St. Vincent de Paul thrift store to symbolize the "naked" passage; donated Easter baskets to homebound senior citizens and took part in a "Vigil on Immigration," ("stranger"); as well as donated Bibles, Christian literature and services to prisoners ("prison").

"It's an amazing project," said Bohmann, a member of the human services committee. "The response is incredible. It's definitely something we'll continue to do, and I imagine it will only continue to grow.”

The foot care project was scheduled to merge with Holy Thursday services, where priests wash the feet of parish members to symbolize that they are servants of the people, and to echo the scene in when Jesus washed the feet of his Twelve Apostles before the Last Supper.

Repairers of the Breach, located in Milwaukee’s inner city, is not affiliated with any religion, although many of its leaders and supporters are Catholic. Established in 1991, the facility is the area’s only daytime resource center for the homeless and normally serves 130 to 150 homeless people a day, according to executive director MacCanon Brown, who watched on as Bohmann cared for the men’s feet. However, with the nice weather coupled with an ongoing construction project that has made the facility even more cramped and crowded, that number was a bit smaller the week of Bohmann’s visit.

Bohmann unloaded dozens of bagfuls of supplies from his car - ranging from the foot care products to other hygiene items, soaps, shampoos, toothbrushes and combs - and carried them into the facility before beginning his work. Afterward, he talked about the experience of caring for the men’s neglected and sore feet.

“It certainly is a direct application of Christ’s Gospel,” he said. “Taking care of a homeless person’s feet.” The experience, he said, was a bit more intimate and perhaps unsettling than he expected. “You’re getting right down there to this level, at a homeless person’s feet. ... I’ve never had an experience like that before.”

The experience was just as meaningful to the homeless men who participated.

“It felt good,” Norris explained. “I felt cared for.”

HUMAN CONCERNS 5TH SUNDAY

PRIORITY RELATIONSHIPS

The Society of St. Vincent de Paul

Our local conference of St. Vincent de Paul will be coming to speak at each of our masses the weekend of June 5th & 6th. They will also have a table in the gathering space after mass for questions & to discuss service opportunities. There are immediate needs for new members and financial contributions as the level of those in need locally, is at an all time high. The following is a summary of the organization and service opportunities available.

Goals & Objectives

The Society of St Vincent de Paul exists to provide an environment for the personal spiritual growth and development of those who participate in its works. This energizing spirituality leads the members to “seek and find the forgotten, the suffering, and the deprived, so that they may bring them the Father’s love”. Vincentians are a “relational” people; called to be in relationship with our sisters and brothers in need. Works of charity are a means to this end. They strive to:

- ◆ Take part in spiritual development and formation based upon Scripture, prayer, reflection and discussion with their fellow members at their regular meetings.
- ◆ Serve, as best as they can, the physical, spiritual social and economic needs of everyone in trouble, without regard to religious or racial background.
- ◆ Make special efforts to eliminate the causes of these injustices.
- ◆ Grow spiritually through person-to-person contact with those in need.

Vincentians in parish groupings (a conference), like St James, work cooperatively with others involved in the same works.

Who Can Be a Member?

The Society of St Vincent de Paul is an association of lay men and women from all walks of life, from every social, economic, educational, ethnic, racial, and age level. Conferences are generally parish members who desire to live their faith commitment in service to the Lord’s beloved needy. They agree to meet regularly to support each other in their work. They develop personal helping skills not only in the distribution of aid, but in listening to and supporting those who need help.

How you can help

SVDP envelopes for donations are at each exit of the church or you can send donations to the rectory marked in an envelope for SVDP. For further information or any interest in possibly joining the St James SVDP conference, you can call Terry Lehnen @ 262-352-5674 or Daryl at the parish office. Once again, immediate needs are new members & financial contributions.

If there are any general questions about the “Priority Relationships”, contact Tom Bohmann @ 262-628-8323

They're on Fire!

Growing up I would always savor the opportunity to visit particular friends. As much as I enjoyed spending time with them I also had ulterior motives: video games. One game I really enjoyed was a game called NBA Jam, a 2-on-2 arcade-style basketball game complete with 1080° dunks and half court shots. Forever burned in my memory is the phrase "He's on Fire!" which the announcer emphatically yells when a player scores three consecutive baskets. Once "on fire", a player is momentarily unstoppable, able to score from just about anywhere on the court.

Inevitably, the phrase "He's on fire!" pops into my mind every Pentecost, when we celebrate the outpouring of the Holy Spirit appearing as tongues of fire on the disciples. This Holy Spirit did something. There is a sharp contrast between the behavior of the disciples before the outpouring and after. Unsure of what to do after Jesus' ascension into heaven, the future leaders of the Church fled the limelight, opting for a closed Upper Room in Jerusalem. There are no stories of public speeches, no interaction with those outside their community, and no efforts to make disciples of all nations before Pentecost. Instead, they were told to "stay in the city until clothed with power from on high" (Lk 24:49). So they waited to be clothed in God.

Once "on fire" in NBA Jam, the appearance of a player changes so profoundly that even those in the darkest of uniforms glow with the brightest of reds. The disciples waited for their bright red uniform. And at Pentecost their uniforms arrived as The-Fire-That-Does-Not-Consume filled the entire Upper Room: in the space above the table, in the cracks of the floor, and most importantly in the hearts, minds, and souls of those present. Everything changes. Peter stands up and gives a major speech. The disciples interact with the Jews outside their community. And many, many were baptized and made disciples. "They're on fire!", and they catch others on fire. Like the NBA Jam players, the disciples are a force to be reckoned with, a winning team.

It is that very same Holy Spirit that came down and confirmed some 80+ high school youth from St. James on April 18th. They too were filled with The-Fire-That-Does-Not-Consume. God's presence was palpable in the sweet smelling chrism, the joyful youth, and the tear-filled family members. Everything changes. Though the response from our newly Confirmed may take a while to materialize, they will be the ones who speak of Christ, interact with people outside the St. James community, and be Christ to one another. "They're on fire!"

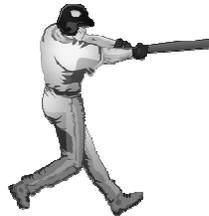

On May 23rd we will gather to celebrate Pentecost in a type of Upper Room at Mass. We will congregate as a hopeful community, praying that the Holy Spirit will enter into our lives and set us ablaze so we may be light and warmth to a sometimes dark, cold world. As at every Mass, The-Fire-That-Does-Not-Consume will be there and will enter our hearts, minds, and souls as much as we, by the grace of God, allow. May we be open to the Spirit enkindling the fire of God's love in us; may we love God and one another with a fiery passion; and may we look around at one another and join with the NBA Jam announcer and say "they're on fire!" And set afire, may we, in the words of St. Ignatius of Loyola, "go forth and set the world on fire."

Blessings,

HEALTH MINISTRY NEWS

April: National Youth Sport Safety Month ...

As I was preparing to write this month's article, I learned that Spring can be a time to focus on youth sport safety. Since spring is just around the corner and spring and summer sports have or will soon be starting, I thought many families of school age children might be interested to learn about a new website I found for The National Youth Sports Safety Foundation, Inc (NYSSF). This is a national non-profit, educational organization dedicated to reducing the number and severity of injuries youth sustain in sports and fitness activities. NYSSF claims to be the only organization solely dedicated to this objective. Their Internet address is <http://www.nyssf.org>.

Did you know that:

- ◆ Sports participation has become a major cause of serious injury among youth.
- ◆ Sports activities are the second most frequent cause of injury for both male and female adolescents.
- ◆ It has been recommended that sports specialization should be avoided before the age of ten years.
Source: FIMS/WHO Consensus statement. "Organized Sports for Children".
- ◆ The American Academy of Ophthalmology has launched a campaign for mandatory protective eyewear for children participating in school-related or community-sponsored athletic events. Eye injuries are the leading cause of blindness in children and sports are the major cause of eye injuries in school-age children.
- ◆ Each year it is estimated that more than five million children seek treatment in hospital emergency rooms because of sports injuries.
- ◆ Less than 10% of the two and a half million volunteer coaches, and less than one-third of the interscholastic coaches in the US have had any type of coaching education.
- ◆ Most sports injuries are preventable.

How Can You Promote Youth Sports Safety:

1. Consider joining NYSSF to keep current on the latest research, guidelines and resources on youth sports safety.
2. Create a list of your community's sports fields and playgrounds. Check them for hazards. These would include: glass, rocks, debris, pot holes and movable soccer goals which are not secured as they may tip over when climbed on and cause injuries. See www.cpsc.gov for the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commissions' guidelines on movable soccer goals.
3. Write letters in support of youth sports safety to school boards, athletic directors and administrators of youth sports programs. Encourage them to have an emergency plan and role in advocating coaching education.
4. Invite local professional athletes to talk with students regarding conditioning, training and sports safety.

These are some of their recommendations. The NYSSF appears to be a very worthwhile and beneficial resource to you and your children and our community.

Have a safe, healthy and happy Spring!
